THE WORK OF WOMEN

Providing for Sick and Wounded.

WHAT THEY DO FOR THEM

Arrival of the Hospital Ship Solace at Port Monroe Yesterday. Ancient Remains Unearthed. Other Local Matters of Interest.

Too much cannot be said in praise of the work of the ladies of this city in behalf of the sick and wounded soldiers at Port Monroe. The City of Washington had hardly landed the first installment from the bloody field of Santiago when a movement was instituted for the purpose of supplying them with the necessities of life. The government does not provide for them. Mrs. General Armstrong and Mrs. Frank Darling at once began the work with which so many women have been connected. The active interest of other prominent ladies, and before the end of last week their efforts had taken sympathetic shape. Now more than a dozen women are hard at work, and during the past two or three days their nimble fingers, prompted in their labor of love by heartfelt sympathy for the suffering soldiers, have accomplished wonders. Scores of light garments suited to the necessities of the sick and wounded have been made and sent to the hospital officials at Port Monroe, and steps have been taken to provide the men with those numerous apparently unimportant but really helpful comforts which the gentle hands of kind mothers and sisters would make sure to them were they in the homes which the left to brave the hardships and dangers of war with savage foes.

This noble example of the women of Hampton is not only worthy of praise and commendation, but should give birth to a spirit of zealous emulation in the minds and hearts of all who are able in any way to contribute to its success. Nothing could be more gratifying than the earnest and tireless efforts of these Southern ladies to bind up the wounds and nurse back to health and strength those Northern heroes who feel white face, the hissing hall of death on the field of Santiago. Let no one hesitate to help them in their noble work. Mrs. Armstrong and Mrs. Darling will furnish information as to what is needed, and in a few days the Daily Press will publish a list of articles which are required.

FOR THE SICK AND WOUNDED.

Hampton Hospital Aid Association Engaged in Good Work. (Communicated.)

The ladies of the Hampton Hospital Aid Association held a meeting on Friday afternoon in the rooms of the F. M. C. A., the business in hand being to make provision for the immediate needs of the sick and wounded soldiers lately arrived at Port Monroe.

The result of this meeting was most satisfactory, showing, as they do, that our citizens are responding promptly and generously to the demand made upon them. The president reported that the hospital had been secured, three hundred from Hampton and a hundred from Northern aid societies, and would be delivered in camp by Sunday morning.

The treasurer of the association was in Richmond, but her husband, Mr. F. M. C. A., is now in the city, and is in later, showing that great interest exists there and that substantial help will be given.

Mrs. Stuart reported directly from Dr. DeWitt that the pajamas supplied will meet the demand, and that now funds for ice, butter, lemons and milk are urgently needed. Dr. DeWitt estimates that $30.00 a week will be required for this and the association has been asked to contribute the amount for the coming week. This will be obtained from Richmond and other sources, as it is not proposed to tax our local resources too heavily in the beginning.

All the ladies present at the meeting offered their services to Chaplain Freeland for whatever purpose they may be required, and he will keep the officers of the association informed as to the needs of the men, such information to be published in the Daily Press.

Any one desiring further information can apply to Mrs. M. F. Armstrong, Mrs. Frank Darling or Miss F. M. Walcott.

ADVISED A SNEAK.

How Volunteers Annoy Visitors to Old Point.

A volunteer who claimed that he was a corporal, but who probably lied, as he did in almost everything else that he said, approached a party of ladies at Old Point yesterday and, having learned that they had made an unsuccessful effort to secure passes admitting them to the fort, proceeded to advise them that it was an easy matter to sneak in, a method for accomplishing which he had learned from a reliable source, with which he seemed to be entirely familiar. This alleged corporal, whose garrulous tongue wagged out volleys of Bowersy jargon, insisted upon acting as escort to the ladies in a tour of the fort, and, despite the fact that his presence was extremely distasteful could not be shaken off.

At the same time he sought to entertain them with accounts of the death of wounded men in the hospital during the past two or three nights, his statement being that they were "dying like sheep." Just how rapidly sheep die he did not explain, but what he lacked in that respect he made up in a series of well told fabrications about half a dozen other things.

FOUR BODIES UNEARTHED.

Discoveries Made While Digging a Cellar on Back River.

Workmen engaged in digging a cellar on Back River for a wealthy Northern gentleman, a few days ago, unearthed the remains of four persons who had been buried in plain wooden coffins. The discovery became the chief topic of discussion in the neighborhood and various forms of speculation were indulged in as to whose bones had been dug up.

The oldest inhabitants of the section say that they have no recollection of interments having been made there, and that the bodies were placed there during the war, for before it a building occupied the ground now being excavated. In view of these facts it has been decided that the bones discovered are those of people who died at least one hundred years ago.

THE PROOF OF IT.

The war correspondent, who had returned from the scene of action in Cuba or who said he had, was giving the crowd of listeners a lurid account of a fight he had witnessed on the summit of the volcano of San Juan, says the Washington Star. Everybody in the crowd was taking the story right down without the least sign of a doubt as to its absolute accuracy, until a long and smooth face and a muffled shirt front became an interrogator after the facts.

"Did I understand you to say it was a Kentucky battle?" said one of the right up the hill over the brush and rocks in the very muzzles of the enemy's guns?"

"That's what," asserted the narrator. "And they threw away their knapsacks on the first jump."

"You bet they did. They didn't want and handicap in a race like that."

"Indeed they did, they threw away their coats?"

"And their hats?"

"They went into it bareheaded, like the daredevils they were."

"And they dropped their cartridge belts?"

"Everyone of them, and went for the foe with their cold bayonets."

"And their canteens?"

"Nothing but B. G. Gorge, they went into the scrap stripped like prize fighters."

The smooth faced man coughed and shook his shirt.

"That's all right," he said, firmly. "They were not Kentuckians. That's their style of fighting, but you can bet a farm that Kentuckians never would have thrown their canteens away."

A ONE-MAN ROAD.

A Washington man who put in ten years of soldiering in the regular army of the United States was recently appointed a captain and assistant adjutant general of the volunteer service, and is now attached to the staff of Gen. Miles, says the Washington Star. He is a man of ability and great unpretentiousness.

A few days before he donned his uniform he went over to Fort Monroe, Baltimore, on official business. A war department clerk went along with him, and when the two men arrived at Fort Monroe the new captain pointed to a long shell road that runs through the post.

"You see that road?" asked the captain, but here he was interrupted by "Yes."

"Well, I made that whole road myself. It was as tough a job as I ever did, and as after a period, but it did me a heap of good. I was serving with an artillery regiment, part of which was stationed here, and one night when I was on guard the officer of the day, a Kentuckian, sent me out to find him sitting down on a pile of gunny sacks, neglecting his post. I got a general court-martial for neglect of duty on post, and was sentenced to six months in the guard house. My sentence tickled the old provost mightily, for he was in need of a steady prisoner to build that road. I built it, and within a matter of a month my shell building I. I never did myself feeling cheery and high and mighty, and all that sort of thing, that I don't shut my eyes at the thought of this shell road over to Fort McHenry."

FARMER BILL GOOD.

"What's all them soldiers marching 'round the town fer?" asked Farmer Bill Good who has not been in the city for three months and refuses to take a paper, because he doesn't believe what they say, reports the Seattle Post Intelligencer.

"They are going out to whip Spain," replied the old politician.

"Spain? Whatabouts is that in the geography?"

"Over near Cuba, some place."

"Yes, I recollect, Cuba on the map. What kicked up the fuss?"

"They sunk the Maine."

"Out whar Jim Blaine lives?"

"No, the battleship Maine—they put a bomb under."

"And did the mine cave in?"

"No, no, no, it blew up."

"One of them durned missed shots, eh?"

"Oh, go on; you're too green. Go and subscribe for some paper and get your neighbor to read it to you."

The old man plodded along on his way musing that he would never take a paper, for he knew more now than all the papers in Christendom.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE

Market Quotations from the Leading Business Centers.

NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Money on call steady, 1-1-2 per cent.; prime mercantile paper, 3-3-4 per cent.; sterling exchange steady, with actual business in bankers' bills at 4-35-3-4 for demand and 4-44-2-3-4 for sixty days; posted rates, 4-35-2-2 and 4-37; commercial bills, 4-32-1-2; silver certificates, 50-1-2; bar silver, 51-1-8; Mexican dollars, 45-5-8; State bonds, dull; railroad bonds, steady; government bonds, steady.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE.

NEW YORK, July 16.—Wall street apparently remained unconvinced today that values of securities had been increased by the capitulation of Santiago and prices steadily declined to advance in fact that event. The upward tendency of Americans in London was viewed with apathy and the low advances at the opening here were not up to the London parity. The accumulated orders in commission houses were of very small volume, the out-putting being apparently taken up with other interests. The market was aggressive, and were prompt to take advantage of the absence of buying demand to attack the market.

There seems no impending development in the war situation to require caution on the part of the shorts. The bank statement is not readily analyzed. The decrease in cash of $4,000,000 is practically all accounted for by the sale of the sub-treasury during the week on account of bond subscriptions. The movement is not reflected in the deposit average of the banks as was the case last week. The loan expansion is consistent with the fact that the decline in cash is almost reflected in the increase of the surplus.

Early in the week there was a very conspicuous pressure in money seeking investment, as a result, probably, of the certainty that the government loan would be easily taken up by small holders, thus releasing funds held against the market for large amounts of money. The movement was most conspicuous in what are called speculative bonds, the present high prices of well secured bonds being almost prohibitive. Of the speculative class, one class is made up of securities of bankrupt roads with a reorganization in prospect, and an exchange of existing securities for new securities. Another class is made up of organized roads still held by large and deriding syndicates who have not relinquished them and presumably therefore not found their true price level. Another is the so-called income and adjustment bonds, the amount of the payment upon which is contingent upon earnings. All three of these classes have been largely dealt in during the week, the total par value of sales each day running nearly $6,000,000 and not falling between $2,000,000 until Friday.
